Overview

The Role

We are looking for a motivated software engineer to help us advance the electronic technologies in our cars. This position is primarily focused on UI and App architecture but may also cross into embedded systems.

Responsibilities

- Design, code, and debug application software running on embedded Linux.
- Develop, test and diagnose device drivers for embedded Linux.
- Design, code and debug client/server software for cloud and mobile apps.
- Develop UI code based on the Qt framework.
- Rapid prototyping.
- Work in a small, agile cross-discipline team.

Requirements

- Proficiency with C/C++.
- Experience using common design patterns in the software industry.
- High standards for code quality, maintainability and performance.
- Experience with Git or equivalent version control system.
- Experience with Yocto/OpenEmbedded is a plus.
- Experience with automotive software stacks is a plus.
- Experience with the ARM architecture is a plus.
- Experience with agile development methodologies such as Scrum / XP is a plus.
- Experience with Javascript / node.js is a plus.

The Koenigsegg R&D team is a small, agile hub of highly talented individuals, where the sum is greater than the parts. Koenigsegg is committed to hiring and developing top talent from across the world for any given discipline. Our world-class team operates with a non-conventional, 'Lean Development' philosophy of high inter-disciplinary collaboration, flat organizational structure, and technical contribution at all levels. You will be expected to challenge and to be challenged, to create, and to innovate.
