Google Blacklist Words

As the biggest internet company, and as the sole of the internet, Google is taking great care of an internet search to offer clean and useful results. Therefore, whenever you type a word to search for, Google filters its results to show the most relevant matches and keeps its results safe, and clean from any bad words or offensive words.
Right now, if you search for any explicit word or image, you never get what is typing because SafeSearch is always active.

Please note that Google neither released the official Google profanity list nor given any free license for any site to release Google blacklist words, what we are offering here is the full list of Google bad words that many developers and coders had made so many try and error search trials in Google Chrome, and dig through Google source codes, and extracted Google profanity list.

So, it's important for anyone to try to avoid any bad words on his website or blog to have the chance to be shown in Google's search results and have traffic and score in search engines.

How can I know if that word is bad?

There is a very simple way to check your word whether bad or not:

When Google released a new version of its keyboard for Android, it comes along with Google banned words list. Google's recently launched a new site named; What Do You Love? It is a neat showcase for some of the company's services, you may try to check some words from our list, and you will be asked; What Do You Love?.

- Type a word from Google bad words on the Keyboard – Google will offer NO HELP.
- Disable the Google profanity filter in Keyboard settings, then all words will be available for auto-complete.
- If you type any word from our bad words list, you will be falsely redirected to "kittens" instead of your word, which means that word is one of Google banned words list.
- For example type "Flowers" and you will be right redirected to "Flowers", which means that this word is not banned by Google.

Unfortunately Google's site; What Do You Love? It is offline now!

What to do with the bad words list?

- Bloggers may use the list to filter their writing and replace bad words with more safe words for visitors.
- Site owners and admins, that have user-contributed content or user-generated content may use the bad words list to filter their site content, emails, comments, and forums to keep their site clean.
- Copywriters need the bad words list to be sure that their articles have no swear words or offensive words that harm their readers.
- Developers and Web Designers essentially need to know all swear words, to avoid adding these words to their own JavaScript code, Apps EDU domain, and their titles too.
- Generally, taking care and avoiding these bad words on any website or blog, surely will score in SERPs.

Protect Your Business and Family!

It's really recommended to use the Full Words List to protect your website, your business, your brand, your family, and your kids from these kinds of profane words!. Moreover, you can protect your visitors and customers from user-generated content and comments, which contains offensive, and bad words.

Profanity Filter

A Profanity filter is a content moderation tool or a content censor plugin. Profanity filter scans user content to filter out bad words. It is very important for your personal and business websites, and social media pages. You can also use it in online communities, marketplaces, and any platforms that rely on user-generated content.

Profanity Filter needs a list of Bad Words List (Blacklist Words) to filter your content, either blocking out the bad words or replacing them with special characters or Unicode characters.

How to use our Full List Of Bad Words List

1. Use a Profanity Filter to censor content on your website to easily filer and block out all swear words from your website.
2. Copy all the swear words from the Bad Words List and paste them into the Profanity Filter "Keywords Comment Moderation Box". You may also add any specific words or any forms of unwanted content which you want also to be filtered and blocked out.

Please note that most platforms have a profanity filter, just as Facebook, Youtube, Instagram, WordPress, and many more. And according to your platform, you can also find so many free profanity filters and plugins on the net.
