

Longest tennis match records

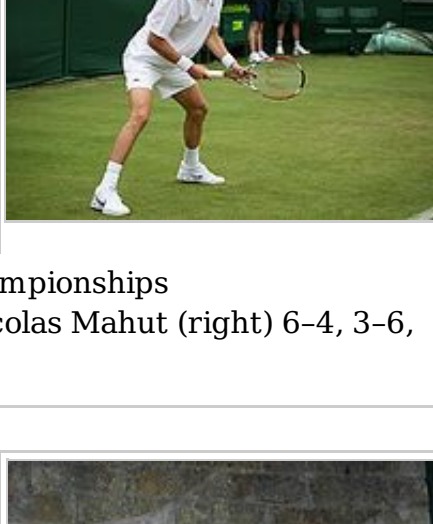

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

This article details

longest tennis match records by duration or number of games. The 1973 introduction of the tiebreak reduced the opportunity for such records to be broken. However, among the Grand Slams, only the US Open uses the tiebreak in the final set; the Australian Open, the French Open, Wimbledon and Olympic tennis instead use the advantage set rules in the final set – in such a set there can be an indefinite number of games until there is a winner. This resulted, for example, in the record-obliterating Isner vs. Mahut match at Wimbledon 2010.

At the 2010 Wimbledon Championships John Isner (left) defeated Nicolas Mahut (right) 6–4, 3–6, 6–7, ^(7–9), 7–6^(7–3), 70–68
