EMOJIone

npm v3.0.3 downloads 350k

The web's first and only complete open source emoji set. It is 100% free for digital use and super easy to integrate.

What's Included?

- This project includes libraries used to convert emoji into various formats, including conversion to EmojiOne emoji images.
- All libraries included here are available free under the MIT license.

License to Use EmojiOne Images

EmojiOne Version 3

EmojiOne launched version 3.0 in 2017, which has several licensing options available. PNG 32px, 64px, and 128px as well as 32px and 64px sprites are available for digital use, with attribution. See emojione.com/developers/free-license for more information on usage and attribution requirements.

Premium Licenses are available for larger PNG assets and SVG assets, for digital and print use. See emojione.com/developers/premium-license for more information or to obtain a Premium License.

EmojiOne Version 2

EmojiOne version 2 assets (all SVG and PNG) are available in the 2.2.7 branch, and they remain available for digital use (with attribution) under the Creative Commons license. Please see INSTALLATION.md for instructions on installing version 2, and UPGRADE.md for instructions on upgrading from version 2 to version 3.

Installation

To install emojione, please refer to the guide at INSTALLATION.md. Version 3 introduces many potentially-breaking changes. Refer to the UPGRADE.md documentation for more details.

Contributing

Please see CONTRIBUTING.md for more info on contributing to the emojione project. For artwork comments and questions please see the emojione-assets repo.

Usage

You'll find basic usage examples here in the /examples/ directory, and links to usage demos in USAGE.md.
