Ok very happy to clear this ancient question up. The album was actually named '26 remixes for cash' by Rob Mitchell RIP. He said I should name the album this after I told him how I dealt with all the remix payments.
Every remix I did for this up until it's release I had met the representative of artist somewhere in central London and got paid in cash, so nobody would have my details or know where I lived.
Incidentally Rob also came up with the name 'Surfing On Sine Waves' after I told him loads of people I knew growing up in Cornwall were poser surfers and I didn't wanna hang around with them.
