Getting Involved

Do you want to report a bug, request a feature, contribute to or translate Popcorn Time? Check out our in-depth guide to Contributing to Popcorn Time. We need all the help we can get! You can also join our community to keep up-to-date and meet other developers.

Getting Started

If you're comfortable getting up and running from a `git clone`, this method is for you.

If you clone the GitHub repository, you will need to build a number of assets using grunt.

The `master` branch which contains the latest release.

Quickstart:

1. `gulp run`

If you encounter trouble with the above method, you can try:

1. `npm install -g bower gulp` (Linux: you may need to run with `sudo`)
2. `npm install`
3. `bower install`
4. `gulp build`
5. `gulp run`

Optionally, you may simply run `./make_popcorn.sh` if you are on a linux or mac based operating system.

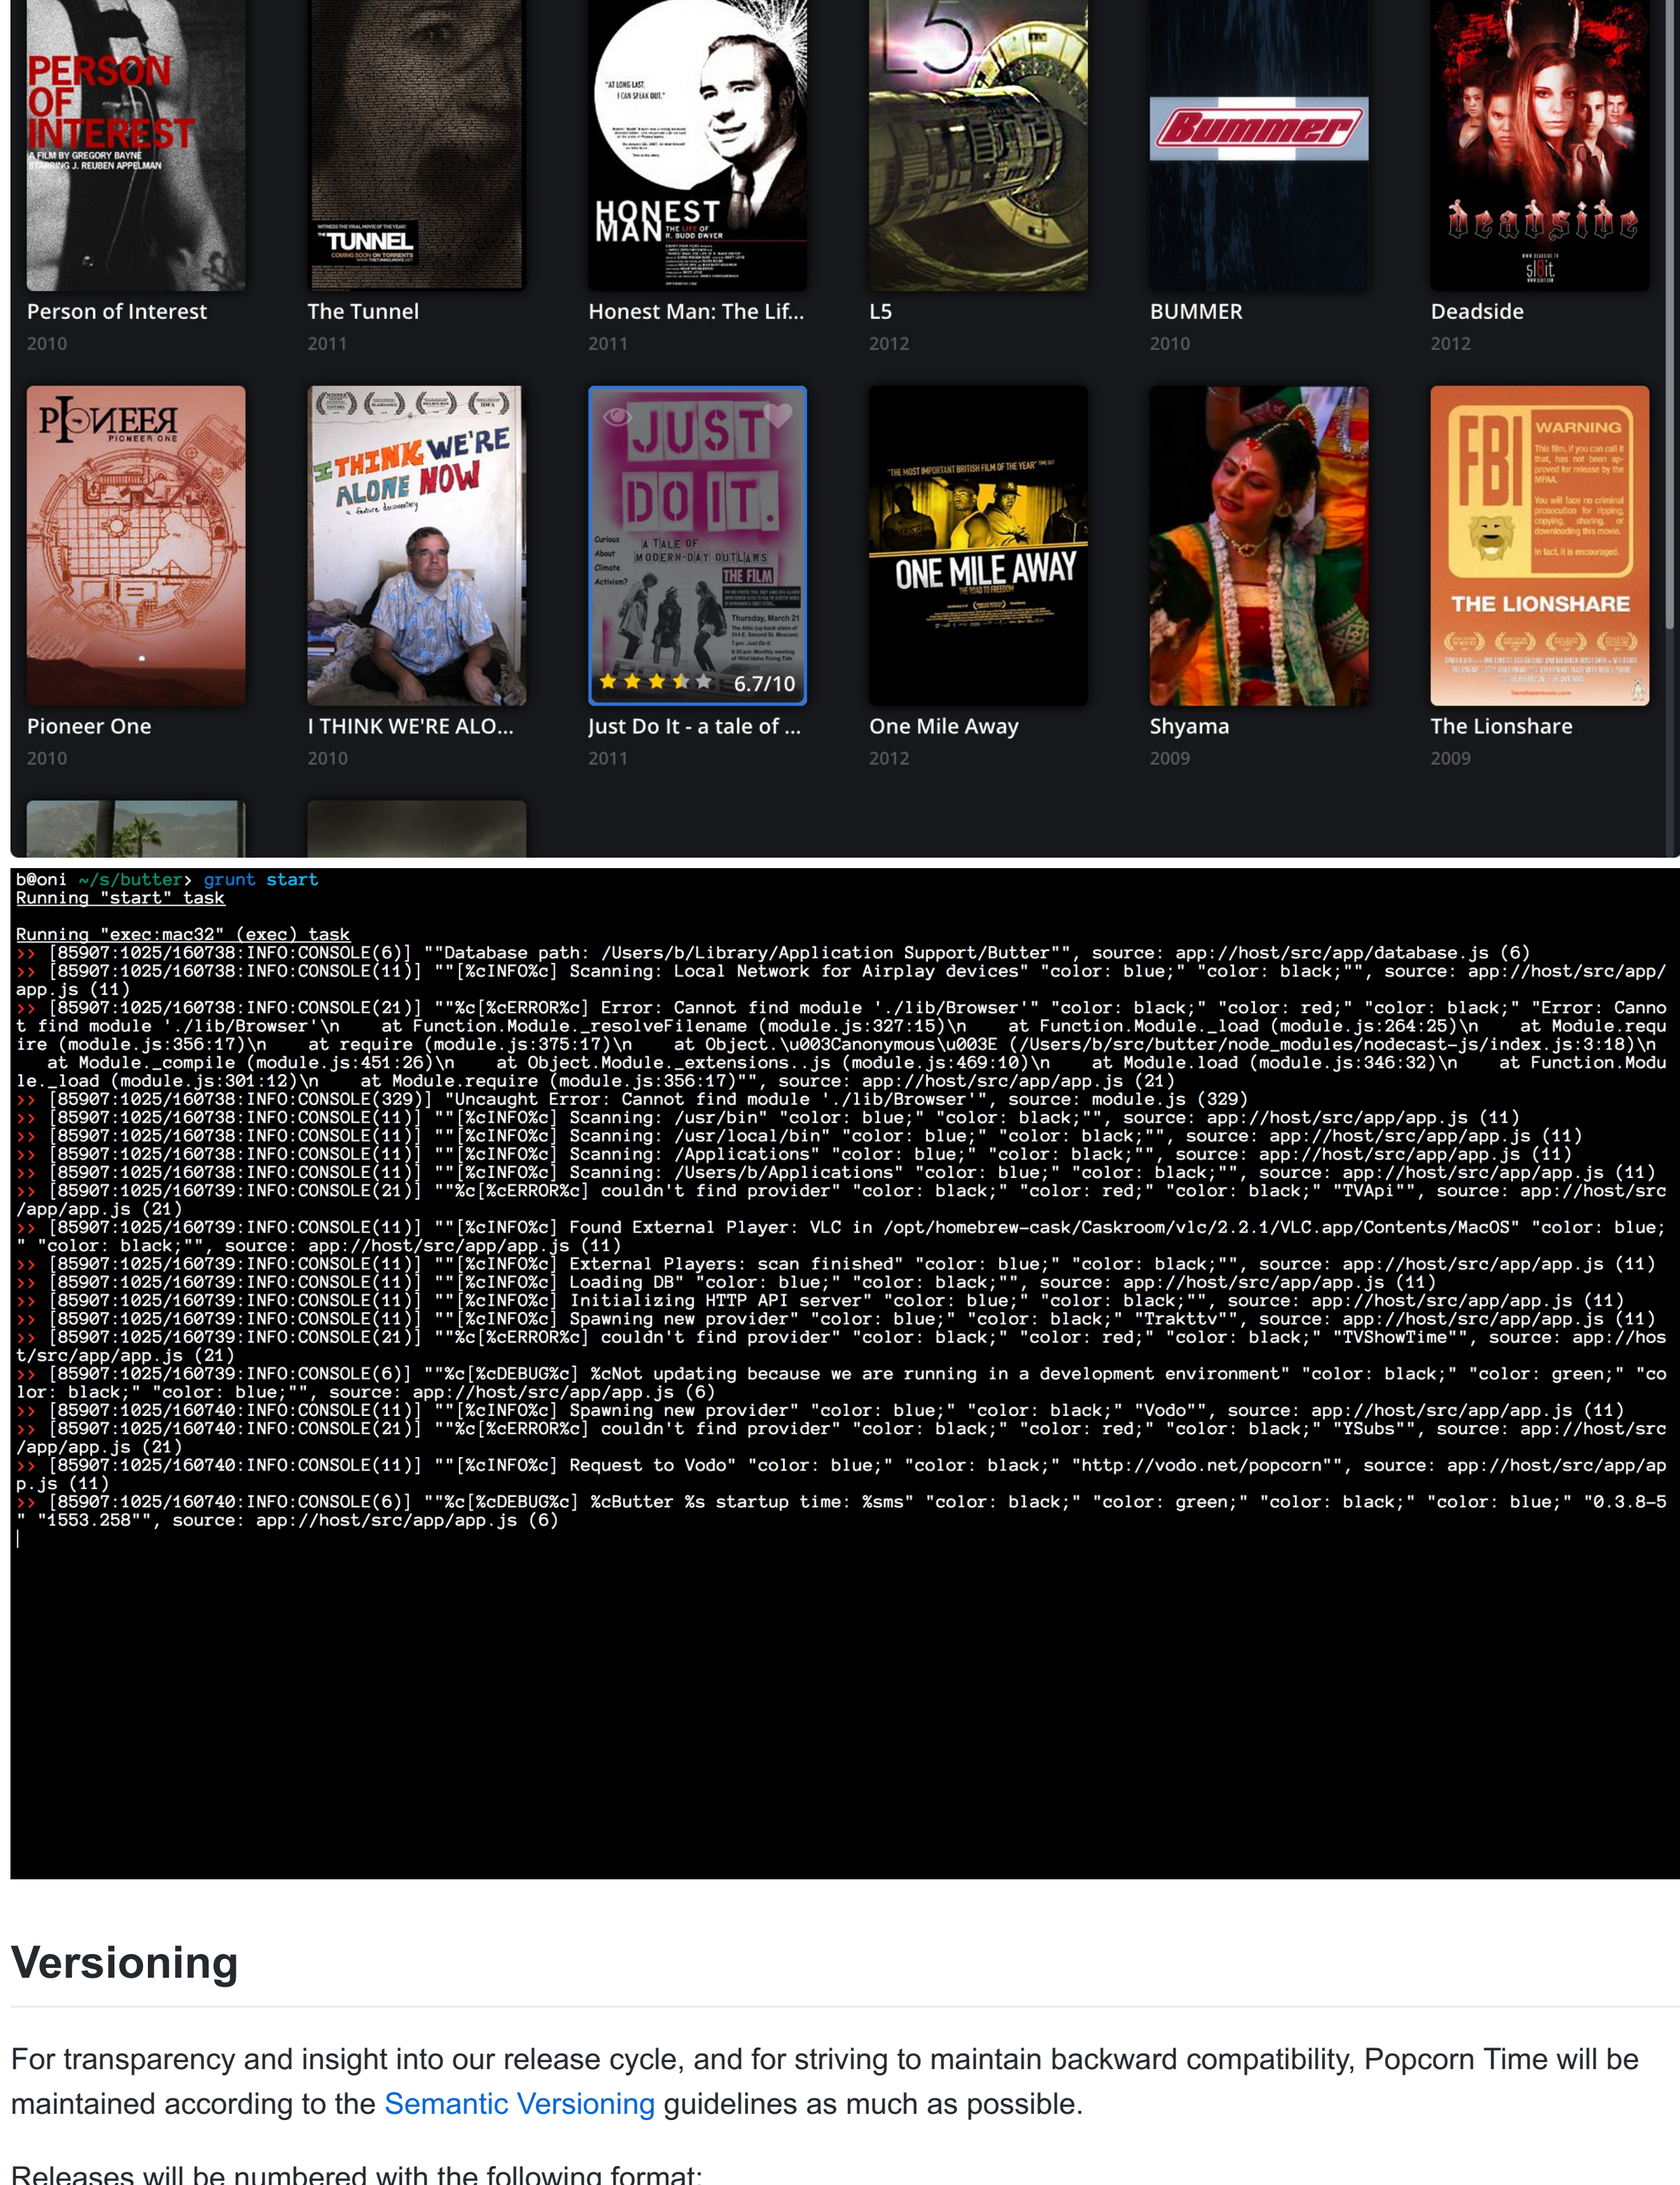

Full instructions & troubleshooting tips can be found in the Contributing Guide

Versioning

For transparency and insight into our release cycle, and for striving to maintain backward compatibility, Popcorn Time will be maintained according to the Semantic Versioning guidelines as much as possible.

Releases will be numbered with the following format:

`<major>.<minor>.<patch>-<build>`

Constructed with the following guidelines:

- A new major release indicates a large change where backward compatibility is broken.
- A new minor release indicates a normal change that maintains backward compatibility.
- A new patch release indicates a bugfix or small change which does not affect compatibility.
- A new build release indicates this is a pre-release of the version.
