Look closely at this graphic showing uncontested races in state legislatures. PA is among the worst. Voters in over 1/3 of our @PALegis races STILL had no choice.

Unusual sensory responses in infancy may be predictive for later autism diagnosis:

Intriguing in light of our own finding that disruption of the cerebellum, a multisensory processor, can drive cognitive and social development off track.

This headline is very misleading. The sentencing memo indicates that FBI suggested Flynn could have others present, including the White House Counsel, but it would be faster to just speak to agents.

Typically the FBI doesn't even mention the possibility of a lawyer.

Byron York @ByronYork

New: FBI recommended Michael Flynn not have lawyer present during interview, did not warn of false statement consequences. ow.ly/M4tw30mX9HH

Took a little longer than expected, but the Princeton Gerrymandering Project has updated its Virginia House of Delegates district viewer to include the Special Master's proposed remedial plans! See them here: rawgit.com/PrincetonUmvie

This article does not say so directly, but it implies it is very likely Jamal Khashoggi was still alive when Dr. Salah Muhammad al-Tubaiki, the head of forensic medicine at Saudi Arabia's Interior Ministry, began to dismember him with a chain saw.

The plot to lie, to cover up has gone on, possibly, through this year when both Cohen and Manafort had contacts directly or indirectly with the White House.

Experts say they had never seen such efforts like the ones in Wisconsin and Michigan before — and that the GOP actions indicate a new level of toxicity has arrived in state government.

Nice summary of Donald's behavior: "It is at once shockingly corrupt, blatantly unethical, probably illegal, and yet, at the same time, shabby, small, and ineptly executed."

I noticed this, too. Somehow the whole convo was framed around idea that the "victimized" side of the power grab (in defiance of majority-determined electoral outcome) had to both justify challenging it and is responsible for doing "more" outreach to other side in response to it.

Richard Yeselson @yeselson

How @chucktodd framed the discussion of the GOP lame duck power grab in Wisconsin was disgraceful, craven, and, on the facts, wrong. @Tony4WI is a lousy advocate on his own behalf. And neither of them mentioned single specific part of the GOP bill. Just terrible, garbage work.

HUGE new NYT investigation about location data. Your whereabouts (home, school, church), pulled from apps on your phone, then sold to advertisers and even hedge funds. A weather app is doing an alarming amount more with your data than providing a forecast.
