

HACKING

Venezuela’s Government Appears To Be Trying to Hack Activists With Phishing Pages

Security researchers and activists exposed a brazen attempt to steal Venezuelan usernames and password for popular email and social media websites such as Gmail, Facebook, Microsoft Live, and Twitter.

By Lorenzo Franceschi-Bicchierai | Feb 15 2019, 4:20pm

Image: Shutterstock

SHARE

TWEET

Hackers allegedly working for the embattled activists into giving away their passwords to popular services such as Gmail, Facebook, Twitter, and others, according to security researchers.

We Need Your Consent

VICE would like you to accept cookies being placed by your browser so that it can analyse website traffic, enable social media features and serve you with personalised content on VICE sites as well as serve you with personalised advertisements on both VICE sites, and other third-party websites within the VICE Publisher Partner Network. This will involve the processing of your personal information including your IP address and browsing behaviour. For more information, please go to our Cookies Policy. To change your preferences or to reject all but necessary functional cookies, please click “Configure Preferences”.

Would you like to accept these cookies?

I Accept

Configure Preferences