La GB a perdu ce matin 2GW d'interconnexion électrique avec la France et son énergie nucléaire. Vents faibles: l'éolien est à moins de 7% de sa capacité de production. Plus de 50% de la production du pays vient de centrales à gaz, pour un taux d'émissions de 333gCO2/kWh 1/2

The UK has lost its IFA 1 interconnector with France, 2GW of power down (this is going to put even more pressure into an already stretched national grid). The smaller IFA 2 interconnector (1GW) is still working. twitter.com/nationalgriduk...

Effet sur les prix de gros l'électricité:

Javier Blas @JavierBlas · 17h

BREAKING UK natural gas wholesale prices are jumping ~20% today to fresh record high as trades brace for more UK gas-fired power station demand after the loss of a key electricity interconnector between UK and France (among other issues)

On ne peut pas leur vendre de l'électricité venant de notre nucléaire ?

Il faut des câbles pour envoyer l'électricité, des transformateurs etc. Et justement, c'est une de ces infrastructures qui a pris feu. La capacité d'export de la France vers la GB a perdu 2 GW. L'équivalent de deux réacteurs nucléaires. Il en reste en gros 1 GW, utilisée au max.
