

Microsoft targeted in antitrust complaint to EU over OneDrive

German software company says Microsoft 'pushes' its file-hosting service OneDrive in Windows

We value your privacy

We use cookies and other technologies to store and access personal data on your device (such as IP addresses and unique identifiers) to keep the site reliable and secure, tailor your experience, measure site performance and present relevant offers and advertisements, as described in our privacy policy and cookie policy.

Some of our partners process personal data on the basis of legitimate interest. You can object to such processing at any time. Please click "Customize" to view our list of partners and the purposes for which consent is required.

You don't have to consent in order to view the information on this site, but if you don't consent, some personalisation of content and advertising won't be available. Your choices on this site will be applied only to this site. You can change your settings at any time by using the link at the bottom of the page to reopen the Privacy Preferences and manage your settings.

Store and/or access information on a device ∨

Personalised ads and content, ad and content measurement, audience insights and product development ∨

Customize

Agree

The Seattle-based company was the target of the first big EU antitrust cases against tech giants in the late 1990s and early 2000s. | David Ramos/Getty Images

BY SIMON VAN DORPE

November 22, 2024 | 4:00 PM

