By using Twitter's services you agree to our Cookies Use. We and our partners operate globally and use cookies, including for analytics, personalisation, and ads.

Arnaud Sp
@aspiwack

Multi-classed So
Engineer/Constru
torture types for

Joined March

Arnaud Spiwack @aspiwack

Follow

France's new Prime Minister is apparently mooting the idea of limiting highway speeds to 110 km/h (form 130 km/h currently).

I posted, years ago, on Google+ (may it rest in peace), a post where I concluded that this was probably a good idea. 1/9

Bon Pote @BonPote
Elisabeth Borne souhaite passer la vitesse sur l'autoroute à 110km/h, C'EST UN SCANDALE !!

Et bien en fait... elle a totalement raison. C'est une…

Show this thread

11:59 AM - 21 May 2022

1 Like

1 1

Arnaud Spiwack @aspiwack · 19m
Let me take the opportunity to go over the idea again.

(I have, of course, saved all of my Google+ posts. I… just… don't know where)

My main thesis is that, when driving a car, speed is not a relevant quantity. 2/9

1

Arnaud Spiwack @aspiwack · 19m
What is relevant is the inverse of speed (sometimes called "pace").

Because you rarely are driving for a given amount of time and wonder what distance you will be able to do in that time. 3/9

1