

▲ vanviegen 29 minutes ago | parent | context | favorite | on: Sending spammers to password purgatory

For our dating site, which of course has to deal with many prinses, Nigerian or otherwise, when we manually verified an account to be a scammer, we reject logins with a message stating that the IP address has been blocked. Scammers will usually go through all of their VPNs/bots in order to try to login, allowing our system to flag them all.

We'll manually review all accounts that use (more than one of) those ip addresses. Works like a charm! :-)

reply