Front row access to your favorite bands and the ones you'll discover — at the most famous desk in the world! As a non-profit, NPR provides this access to millions for free (Fact: All revenue from the YouTube ads you see goes directly to the artists). As public media enters its first year with federal funding eliminated, NPR needs your help. Click the blue donate button to "play" it forward.

National Public Radio, Inc. ("NPR") works collaboratively with member public radio station licensees ("Member stations") to create a more informed public, one that is challenged and invigorated by a deeper understanding and appreciation of events, ideas and cultures. NPR accomplishes its mission by producing, acquiring and distributing noncommercial programming that meets the highest standards of public service in journalism and cultural expression; representing Member stations in matters of their mutual interest; and providing satellite interconnection for the entire public radio system.

Sheldon Pearce | October 25, 2023

Before Nile Rodgers & CHIC set the Tiny Desk off, the icon established a sort of mission statement for the group's sound: "If we can funk in this, you know we can funk." They surely can. In stints since 1972, CHIC has assured its position as funk ambassadors — a position its members clearly relish — and no space is resistant to their grooves. When Rodgers asks singer
