

Facebook is forcing new users to use facial recognition

lemmy.world

Zeon@lemmy.world to Privacy@lemmy.ml · 14 hours ago

104 1 1 1

I only want to use it for facebook marketplace, but jeez i didnt know they were taking it this far with this crap...

◆ You must log in or # to comment.

Hot Top Controversial New Old Chat

□ Mas@jhai.lu 11 · 58 minutes ago

It's been several years already.

□ chemicalprophet@slrpnk.net 1 · 1 minute ago

Good things this won't affect anyone with more than a single functioning brain synapse.

□ TrackinDaKraken@lemmy.world 5 · 42 minutes ago

I don't even use facial unlock on my phone. I enter the pin every time.

Unfortunately, to access the Social Security site, I was required to send a picture of my face and driver's license. So, I suppose Trump will sell that to whoever want's to buy it now.

□ brucethemoose@lemmy.world 6 · 1 hour ago

Use a Google Voice phone number, and an AI generated photo/video.

You can even use augmentations to create different photos/videos of the same fake person. Or create an "altered" version of yourself close enough to match whatever Facebook has.

...Hopefully.

I'm in the same predicament. There's always eBay, but they take a fat cut on top of whatever is paid for shipping.

□ Weydemeyer@lemmy.ml 5 1 · 2 hours ago

People who are saying to just delete Facebook or don't use it aren't wrong of course (I say that myself, to be clear I hate FB); but as someone who tries to buy and sell things secondhand (I see it as being environmentally responsible), this is largely becoming impossible to do locally without Facebook Marketplace. I honestly have some grudging respect for Facebook's ability to survive just when you think they might start to become irrelevant. Things were headed that way for them, then they bought Instagram. And then the last couple years, it was sort of common knowledge that the only people who use it anymore are old folks and Nazis... and then FB Marketplace kills Craigslist and becomes the only app people use for local buying/selling.

Idk maybe there's some opportunity here for some local buy/sell federated service?

□ selokichli@lemmy.ml 4 · 39 minutes ago

Yeah, they are like cockroaches. An alternative to marketplace and online stores is sorely needed, even for good old exchange of things.

□ TrackinDaKraken@lemmy.world 2 1 · 45 minutes ago

If buying shit at Goodwill and selling it online is how you choose to make your living, then I suppose you're "stuck" with FB.

But, if you are making a living at it, or significantly supplementing your income, then your privacy is the cost of doing business. At least you are profiting something from the deal.

□ treeofnik@discuss.online 3 · 2 hours ago

<https://codeberg.org/flomarkt/flomarkt> is popular in some places.

Maybe popular is a strong word. The problem is getting critical mass.

□ lambilicious@lemmy.sdf.org 1 · 47 minutes ago

As with everything else incl. Facebook, the solution to getting critical mass is to use it.

□ Notso@fReddit.org 8 · 3 hours ago

No problemo, Zuck.

□ brachiosaurus@mander.xyz 13 · 4 hours ago

Don't use this shit

□ 1984@lemmy.today 10 · 4 hours ago

Are they the police?

Would never upload picture to American big tech service and im surprised people think that's something they agree to. I guess the addiction is too strong, to these shitty services.

□ selokichli@lemmy.ml 1 · 24 minutes ago

In my country, biometrics are now prevalent. I had a very hard time giving my face to my bank, but the government is on board with this because, they say, we have to combat money laundry. They are trying to tie EVERYTHING to our identities: biometrics, mobile phone number, official documents, bank accounts, they are all tightly tied already.

So, people feel like their biometrics are already out there, since they don't grasp the concept of attack surface. Until now, we need to give our biometrics to vote, to pay taxes, to get a passport, to get a drivers license (in some places), and to get a serious bank account. The only way we can deny biometrics is by not needing any of those services (very poor, and very rich people that don't like to travel the world). Under these circumstances, most people just give away their biometrics to anyone that asks, it's a given for them.

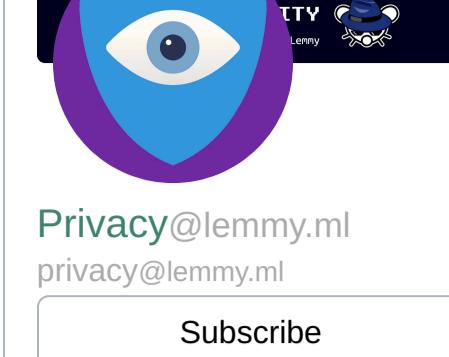

□ rose56@lemmy.zip 21 · 6 hours ago

Delete Facebook and problem solved. Here, where I live, we have websites for marketplace and website for concerts.

□ Feedback17@lemmy.world 5 · 4 hours ago

Asswipe Zuckerberg treats people like bots and bots like kings. Screw him.

□ quick_snail@fReddit.nl 1 · 3 hours ago

Privacy@lemmy.ml

privacy@lemmy.ml

Subscribe

Create a post

Search...

You are not logged in.

However you can

subscribe from another

Fediverse account, for example Lemmy or

Mastodon. To do this,

paste the following into the search field of your instance:

!privacy@lemmy.ml

A place to discuss privacy and freedom in the digital world.

Privacy has become a very important issue in modern society, with companies and governments constantly abusing their power, more and more people are waking up to the importance of digital privacy.

In this community everyone is welcome to post links and discuss topics related to privacy.

Some Rules

- Posting a link to a website containing tracking isn't great, if contents of the website are behind a paywall maybe copy them into the post
- Don't promote proprietary software
- Try to keep things on topic
- If you have a question, please try searching for previous discussions, maybe it has already been answered
- Reposts are fine, but should have at least a couple of weeks in between so that the post can reach a new audience
- Be nice :)

Related communities

- Lemmy.ml libre_culture
- Lemmy.ml privatelife
- Lemmy.ml DeGoogle
- Lemmy.ca privacy

much thanks to @gary_host_laptop for the logo design :)

Visibility: Public

This community can be federated to other instances and be posted/commented in by their users.

711 users / day

912 users / week

4.9K users / month

13.5K users / 6 months

1.91K local subscribers

44.6K subscribers

4.39K Posts 109K Comments

Modlog

mod: k_o_t@lemmy.ml

tmpod@lemmy.pt

Yavannick@lemmy.ml

ranok@sopuli.xyz

✉  Feedback17@lemmy.world

↑ 4 · 4 hours ago

As a sane person I never joined Facebook until recently. At least I tried to. Got rejected for no reason- it said I violated their authenticity requirements or some bullshit. Nonsense. I looked it up and it's common - if they can't farm enough data off you to sell they don't want you. Couldn't care less, but Zuckerberg is a human cancer.

✉  chemicalprophet@slrpnk.net

English

↑ 1 · in 3 minutes

lol 'Sane' people wait to see the damage wrought by this dogshit then wait three years for more of it and THEN try to join. Your sane and my sane are different sanes. Best of luck, citizen!

✉  Zerush@lemmy.ml

↑ 6 · 5 hours ago

Use the face of Zuckerberg

✉  herseycokguzelolacak@lemmy.ml

↑ 7 · 5 hours ago

Just don't use Fakebook

✉  redti@lemmy.zip

↑ 14 · 8 hours ago

Is there still real people there? I thought Facebook was a bankrupt platform filled bot profile keeping the chaos an revenue on?

✉  JamesBoeing737MAX@sopuli.xyz

English

↑ 5 ↓ 2 ·

7 hours ago

Yes, But the marketplace is actually useful.