

Home > Posts > Revealed: Palantir deals with UK state total at least £670m – including £15m contract with n...

Revealed: Palantir deals with UK state total at least £670m – including £15m contract with nuclear weapons agency

EXCLUSIVE Nerve investigation finds Trump ally Peter Thiel's surveillance firm has won at least 34 contracts, including management services for Britain's nuclear deterrent, with MPs warning of 'gaping vulnerability' as US president threatens Nato allies. By Carole Cadwalladr, Charlie Young and Max Colbert

Jan 27, 2026

US president Donald Trump, Palantir Technologies co-founder and chair Peter Thiel and UK prime minister Keir Starmer

Britain's reliance on Palantir, the controversial US data surveillance firm, is a "gaping national security vulnerability", MPs and tech experts have said, as a Nerve investigation reveals how deeply embedded the company is in the UK's critical national infrastructure.

The Nerve's investigation shows the company, co-founded by one of President Trump's most loyal allies, Peter Thiel, is enmeshed in Britain's civil and defence structures to a far greater degree than previously realised. The Nerve has found at least 34 current and past state contracts across at least 10 government departments, local councils and police authorities.

The investigation also reveals previously undisclosed contracts between Palantir and AWE Nuclear Security Technologies, the agency that underpins Britain's nuclear deterrence programme.

The agency, formerly known as the Atomic Weapons Establishment, designs and manufactures the nuclear warheads carried by UK submarines. The Nerve has found £15m worth of contracts for "cloud support" on the Crown Commercial Service dashboard, an agency that works with the Cabinet Office

These contracts are not on the government's official contract finder website and the Ministry of Defence refused to either confirm or deny their existence. Palantir did not acknowledge or respond to the Nerve's inquiries.

The Nerve's research – shown in two infographics here – shows that Palantir has current and historic deals worth £388m with the MOD across at least a dozen contracts and extensions to contracts, and more than £244m with the NHS (12 contracts/extensions). Government agencies and authorities with smaller contracts include Coventry city council, Leicestershire police, DEFRA and the Homes for Ukraine scheme.

Palantir | HM Government

MINISTRY OF DEFENCE

TOTAL £382M

At least a dozen contracts including Strategic Partnerships and work with the Atomic Weapons Establishment

NHS & DHSC

(Department for Health and Social Care)

TOTAL £244M+

Eleven contracts including four for Covid data platforms and Palantir Foundry data Systems

LONDON 2012 OLYMPICS

TOTAL £UNKNOWN

Contracts unknown

CABINET OFFICE

TOTAL £26M

One contract for a 'border flow tool'

HOME OFFICE

AT LEAST £2.2M

At least two contracts for Project Nectar, an AI platform to unify police data

THE DEPARTMENT FOR LEVELLING UP AND COMMUNITIES

TOTAL £10M

HIGHWAYS ENGLAND

SHARE OF £1BN

AMOUNT UNKNOWN

One contract for 'information technology commercial framework'

CENTRAL GOVERNMENT AND ALL PUBLIC SECTOR BODIES

SHARE OF £1.2BN

AMOUNT UNKNOWN

One contract for back office software

LOCAL COUNCILS

£500M

DEFRA

TOTAL £1.5M

One contract for a 'trade analytics solution'

GCHQ

TOTAL £UNKNOWN

Number of contracts unknown but reportedly includes a data tool called Kite

GOVERNMENT DIGITAL SERVICE

TOTAL £735K

One contract for services undisclosed

TUC NCRWC

Following a week in which Trump threatened hostilities against Denmark, a Nato ally, as well as tariffs against the UK and other European countries supporting Denmark, tech and national security experts highlighted the danger of entrusting critical UK civil and defence capabilities to the firm, with one saying that Britain needed to understand the company as a “vector of malign influence”.

Another contract shows a smaller spend of £250,000 on Palantir’s cloud software by the Nuclear Propulsion Integrated Project Team (NP-IPT), a body within the Ministry of Defence “charged with delivering a safe and available Nuclear Propulsion plant to the Royal Navy’s flotilla of nuclear powered submarines”.

“

After this week's geopolitical ruptures, this is a gaping national security vulnerability and, frankly, a scandal

Clive Lewis, Labour MP

Although Palantir has long attracted critical attention in the UK, in particular for its involvement with the NHS – including its federated data platform, which brings together personal and other data from across the NHS – the threat profile of the company’s involvement in both civil and defence programmes escalated rapidly this week.

Clive Lewis, the Labour MP for Norwich South, who is an outspoken critic of the firm, said that parliament was “dangerously behind the curve” in understanding the threat, adding that “after this week’s geopolitical ruptures, it is a gaping national security vulnerability and frankly, scandal”.

The Nerve relies on members to fund its journalism. Sign up here

Palantir is explicit about an ideological mission to defend America and “the west”. On an earnings call last year, the company’s co-founder and CEO, Alex Karp, said that “we are dedicating our company to the service of the west and the United States of America”. He added that it was sometimes necessary “to scare enemies and, on occasion, kill them”.

Keir Starmer with Palantir CEO Alex Karp on a tour of Palantir headquarters, Washington DC, February, 2025. Photo: Carl Court / Getty Thiel was Donald Trump's first high-profile supporter in Silicon Valley, has donated to his campaigns and has financially supported Vice-President JD Vance over the years. Palantir's software has been used by ICE, the US's federal immigration enforcement agency, for years, with new reporting revealing how it is being used to target and locate immigrants. Thiel has been publicly supportive of authoritarian government, saying that he "no longer think[s] that freedom and democracy are compatible".

“

Instead of seeing Palantir as a vendor, the UK would be wise to see them as a vector of malign influence

Chris Kremidas-Courtney, former Nato adviser

a foreign company but because it's a company controlled by Peter Thiel, a billionaire ideologue with far-right affiliations.

"Instead of seeing Palantir as a vendor, the UK would be wise to instead see them as a vector of malign influence."

While refusing to confirm or deny the nuclear weapons contracts, an MoD spokesperson said: "All data used and developed in Palantir's software deployed across the MoD remains sovereign and under the ownership of the MoD. We have put in place extensive data security and protection measures to ensure UK defence information is appropriately managed."

But national security and tech experts dispute that claim, with one calling it "woefully naive" and "deliberately misleading".

Mike Pence, Donald Trump and Peter Thiel at a meeting with technology executives at Trump Tower, New York, December, 2016. Photo: Drew Angerer / Getty

Marietje Schaake – a former MEP, a fellow at Stanford University's Cyber Policy Center and a leading expert in the national security risks of European reliance on US technologies – disputes whether the UK

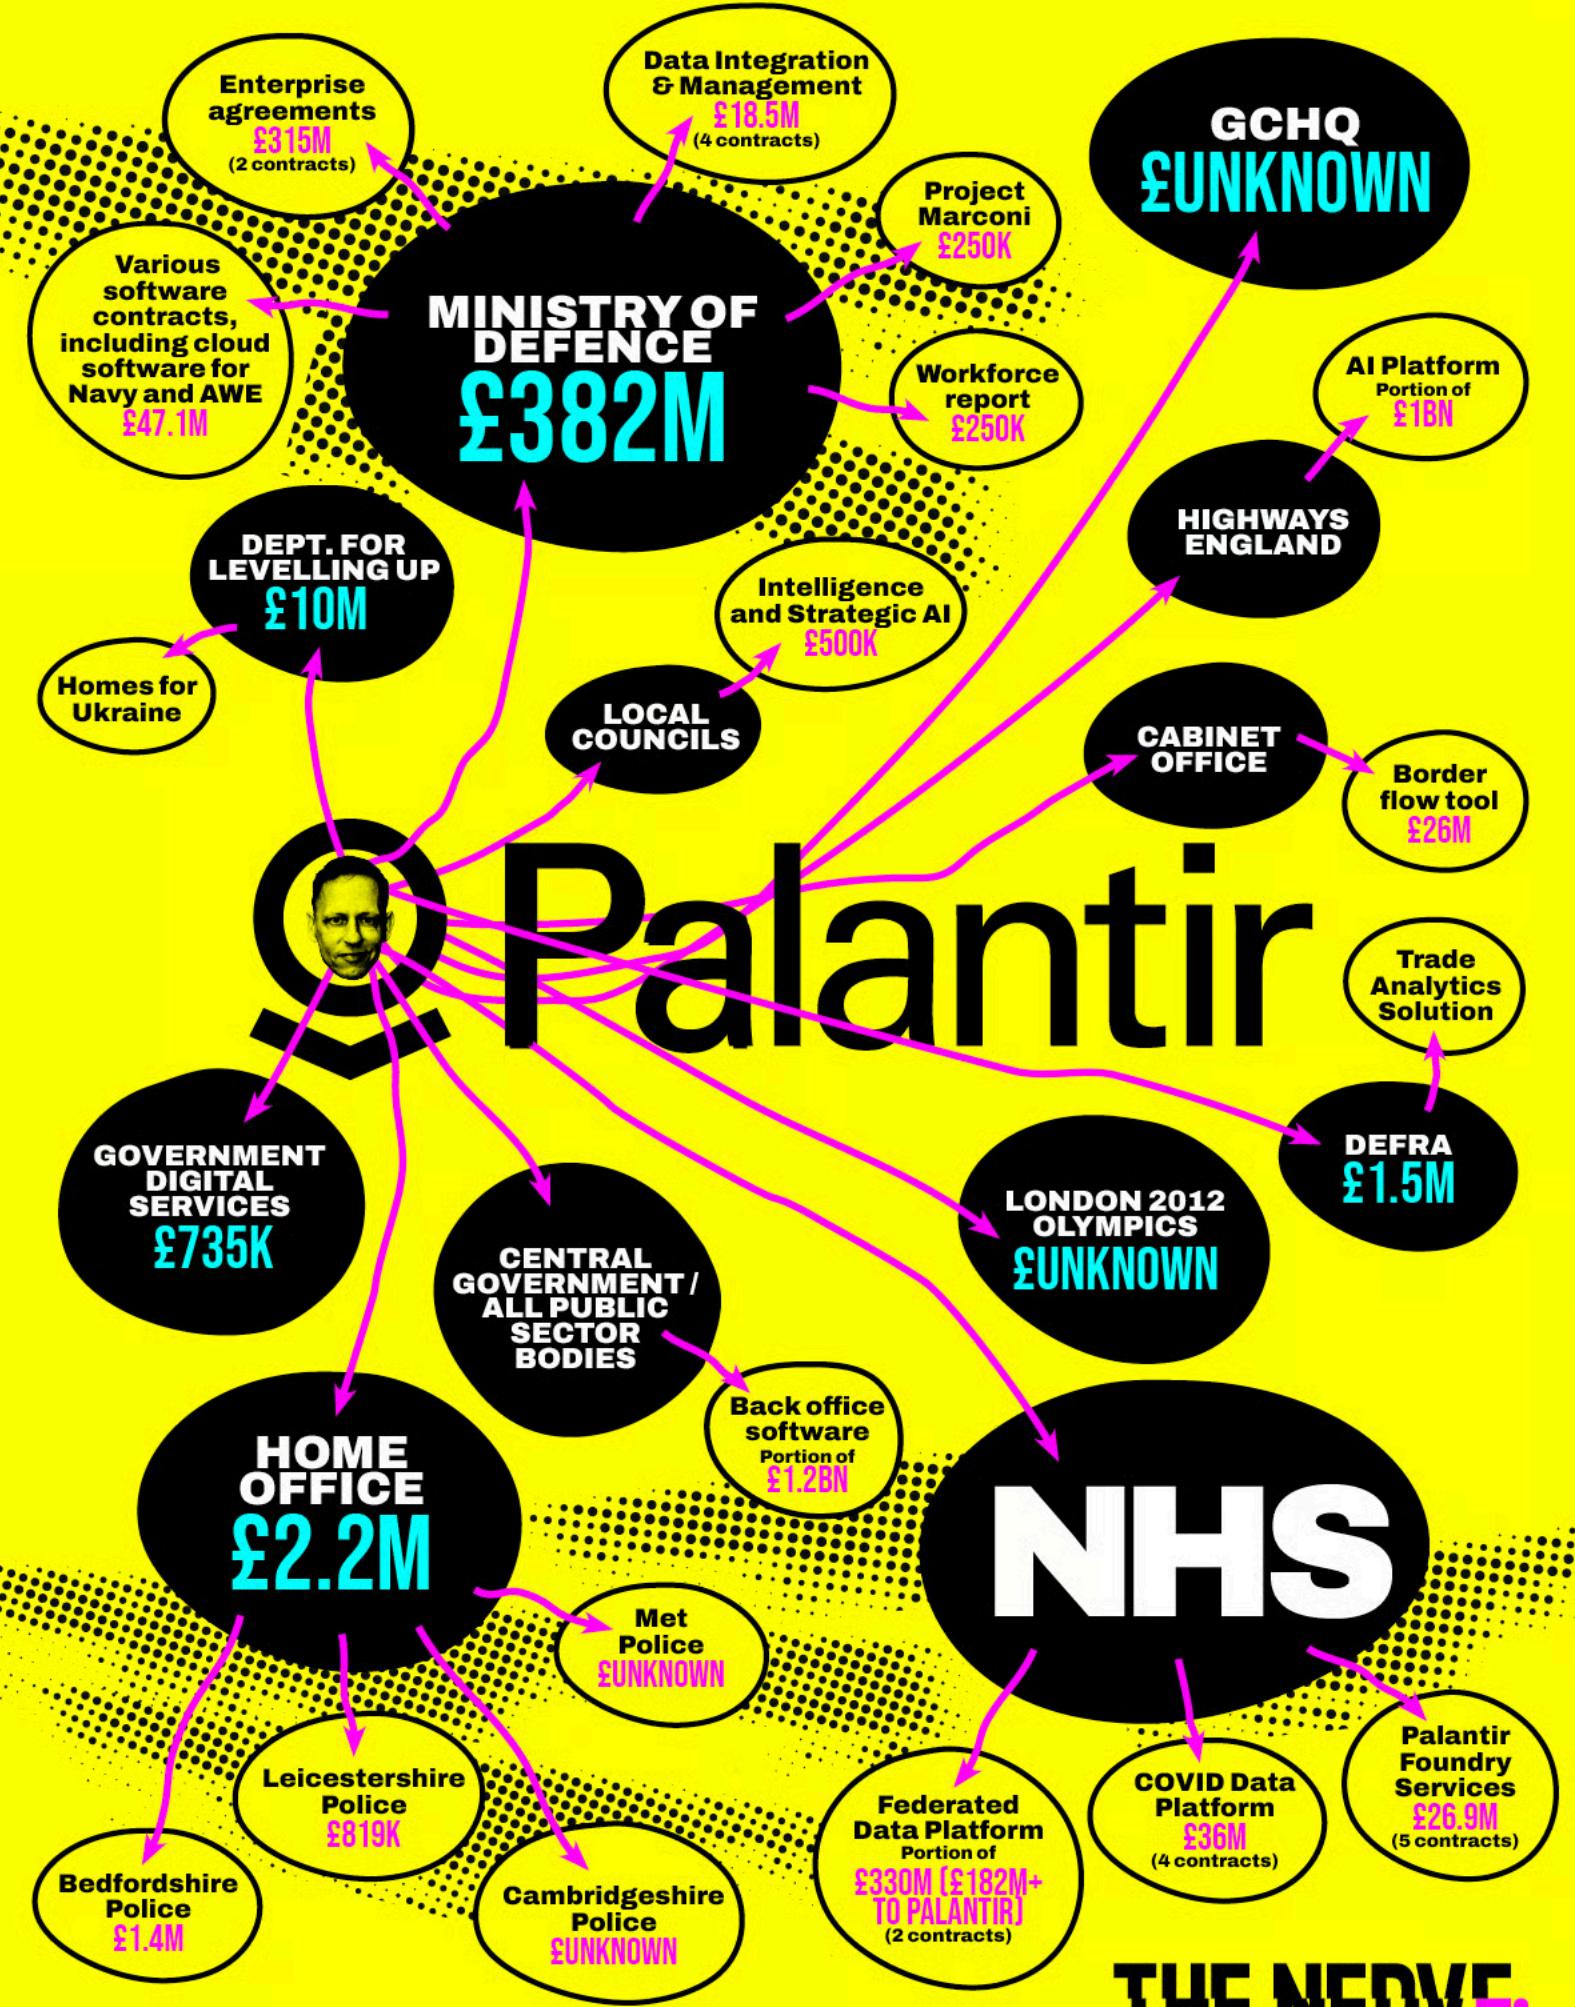

She said that the US Cloud Act and Fisa – the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act – “give law enforcement and intelligence the right to access data anywhere in the world if held by a US company”.

Schaake called US technology companies part of Trump’s “imperialist tool box.”

Palantir’s biggest customer after the US government is the UK government, a reliance that is set to accelerate since the UK government signed a “strategic partnership” between the MoD and the company last September for £240m.

The contract was not put out to tender and was shepherded by Peter Mandelson, the former UK ambassador to the US, who was sacked in September last year after new revelations emerged about his friendship with Jeffrey Epstein. He had temporarily stepped down from his firm, Global Counsel, which counts Palantir as a client.

One European defence contractor who wished to remain anonymous pointed out that there had been articles about “kill switches” in US-built fighter jets, “but you don’t need a kill switch” in any tech defence product, “you just have to update the software to render it inoperable”.

A US national security expert who also wished to remain anonymous said that “all this BS about ownership of the data is a distraction” and asked: “Would the UK allow Russia that kind of control?”

Critics have also pointed out that Palantir’s executive vice -president for the UK, Louis Mosley, the grandson of British fascist leader Oswald Mosley, also has overt political affiliations. Last year, he appeared at the rightwing Alliance for Responsible Citizenship conference, where he joined speakers who included Nigel Farage, Jordan Peterson and GB News co-owner (and funder of the forum) Paul Marshall.

Palantir’s “strategic partnership” with the MoD is just one of a slew of US “tech prosperity deals” that were a core component of Keir Starmer’s negotiation with Trump for lower trade tariffs than those imposed on other countries.

Those deals include other Trump allies and donors such as Larry Ellison’s Oracle (previously covered by the Nerve) and Sam Altman’s OpenAI.

Schaake points out that Trump has already been weaponising access to US technology companies through sanctions. In December, the US State Department imposed sanctions on two British disinformation researchers. It is illegal for any US company to allow sanctioned individuals to access their services – cutting the researchers off from their Google and WhatsApp accounts, for example, and financial service providers such as Visa and Mastercard.

WHO'S WHO AT PALANTIR TECHNOLOGIES

Peter Thiel

Co-founder and chair

Previously co-founder and CEO of PayPal. JD Vance’s former boss and a significant donor to Donald Trump and Vance. According to the New York Times he is worth $27.5bn

He says:

“Highways create traffic jams, welfare creates poverty, schools make people dumb and the NHS makes people sick” (Source: Guardian)

ground and start over...In practice, you have to somehow make it all backwards-compatible in all these ridiculous British ways." (Bloomberg)

"America is, at this point, the natural candidate for katechon and antichrist, ground zero of the one-world state, ground zero of the resistance to the one-world state." (Guardian)

Peter Thiel (left) and Alex Karp (right) at a meeting with Israel's president Isaac Herzog, Tel Aviv, January 2024. Photo: Palantir Technologies / LinkedIn

Alex Karp

Co-founder and CEO

Karp says he had a "super-intellectual, very far-left" upbringing but now sides with Trump on immigration and other issues; author of The Technological Republic: Hard Power, Soft Belief and the Future of the West (2025)

He says:

"We have dedicated our company to the service of the West and the United States of America and we're super proud of the role we play, especially in places we can't talk about. Palantir is here to disrupt and make the institutions that we partner with the very best in the world, and, when it's necessary, to scare enemies and on occasion kill them. And we hope you're in favour of that." (Video, X)

Louis Mosley

Executive vice-president, UK and Europe

He says:

“We [Palantir] are the operating system for the modern battlefield... the significance of today is the UK, America’s closest ally, making the same move.” (Interview with TBPN, September 2025)

“When the Prime Minister talks about ten times more lethality for the [UK] armed forces by 2035 the only way to get there is through artificial intelligence...” (Discussing the AI-enabled military ‘digital kill web’, Sky News, June 2025)

The Nerve is a fearless, independent media title launched by five former Guardian / Observer journalists: investigative journalist Carole Cadwalladr, editors Sarah Donaldson, Jane Ferguson and Imogen Carter and creative director Lynsey Irvine. We cover culture, politics and tech, brought to you in twice weekly newsletters on Tuesdays and Fridays (sign up here). We rely on funding from our community, so please also consider joining us as a paying member. You can read more about our mission here.

KEEP READING

Nov 4, 2025

‘HE’S SO UNAFRAID’: HOW NEW YORK MAYORAL ...

As New Yorkers went to vote, the unapologetically leftwing – and hugely popular – candidate was leading the polls. Mamdani's fearless, canny, often ...

Oct 7, 2025

BERNARD MANNING RIDES AGAIN: HOW TIKTOK AND ...

Social media algorithms boosting slurs have been propelling racist comments into users' feeds. One platform has deleted the videos after being ...

 Chris Stokel-Walker

Oct 10, 2025

'THE PLATFORMS GOT WORSE BECAUSE WE LET ...

The author and cyber-activist argues that the tech giants have ruined life online. The only thing that can save the virtual world now, he tells Zoë Corbyn, is its...

View more >

Email

Sign up for our newsletter

Home | About Us | The Team | RSS |
Manage Subscription

© 2026 The Nerve.

Report abuse Privacy policy Terms of use

Powered by beehiiv