Plot synopsis

The fabulous round trip of Bilbo Baggins, the Hobbit, through the Wilderness, the Black Forest, and the Misty Mountains. It is an original adventure film, based on the fantastic story of J. Tolkien: "Hobbit".
There was a hobbit in this world called Bilbo Baggins, living comfortably in his little house, certain that nothing could ever happen to him. Until the day when a magician came to his house with twelve dwarfs. They told him that they had to undertake a perilous journey, perhaps without hope of return, and asked him to accompany them. Bilbo was frightened at first, but when he saw the dwarves laughing at him, he agreed. They had to enter a cave where the dwarves' treasure was stored. A wicked dragon grabbed two, but the steadfast dwarves were able to escape him. They had to face many incidents and perils during this journey, but Bilbo Baggins constantly came to the aid of the dwarves. Whether it was saving them from the Goblins, freeing them from the web of the Deceitful Spider or the Dragon, he was victorious every time. The Hobbit freed the dwarves and returned the treasure to them. The dwarves rewarded him for his bravery, wisdom, and selflessness. And the Hobbit went home, resumed drinking tea by the fireplace and listening to the musical hissing of the teapot on the fire, as before.
