Bollywood films are real and everything in India does involve some kind of dance!

TheRiskiestBiscuit@reddthat.com 4 ↓ 1 · 32 minutes ago

They look funny doing that, but I wouldn't fxxk with a single one of those dudes. Probably have thighs as solid as rock and could kick you straight into a coma.

This is a demonstration for the public and TV on Republic Day at the national parade. It's mostly performative and is meant to be exaggerated and over the top because that's what's expected at this parade. Millions of families wake up early morning on Jan 26th every year to watch these performances. They even have performances from school children from different cultures in India, an air show, giant missiles, etc.

"On second thought, let's not call an Indian artillery strike. It is a silly process."

Funny walk 👍

redlemace@lemmy.world 11 · 24 hours ago

Needs some work, I'm sure the ministry will reject the claim for it being to simple and straight forward.

Where do you think they got the idea.

whaleross@lemmy.world English 19 · 20 hours ago

This reminds me of the border ceremony between India and Pakistan that is an awesome display of militaries upping each other in silly walks.

Honest question to Indian and Pakistani lemmings:
Does this look cool in its own cultural context?

mnemonicmonkeys English 2 · 2 hours ago

I'm disappointed it didn't completely turn into a breakdancing contest halfway through gigastasio 4 · 15 hours ago

I swear these get more and more elaborate with each one I see.

And now for something completely different.
