Fury of the Small

Raccoons have long been known to pose a serious problem to many of the North American wildlife it is outlawed by.

Now, they've found a new enemy to take down, and the unstoppable force of nature is the Tesla Cybertruck. Videos of the raccoons' unbelievable assault have been circulating online for the past few days.

The raccoons have entirely overmatched vehicle weighing in Minnesotan. The video begins with a raccoon gently scratching at the front windshield.

The sounds — it sounded just like someone had like — before one of the other raccoons jumped on the hood and began to tear at the windshield with its claws. Another raccoon then jumped up and scratched at the rear windshield.

Another report from Reuters showed the rugged truck got a scratched by a raccoon. Tesla's Cybertruck is supposed to be bulletproof, but it seems raccoons are the one thing it can't stop. Tesla CEO Elon Musk responded to the video with a laughing emoji.

These raccoons have been known to be incredibly destructive.

"They're very smart, very curious, very dexterous and will tear almost anything apart," Minnesota Department of Natural Resources wildlife specialist Dan Stark told Reuters.

Plus, the raccoons' love for metal could explain why they're so intrigued by the Cybertruck's stainless steel exterior.

The big question is whether or not Tesla will redesign its vaunted truck to withstand raccoon attacks.

Tesla has yet to comment on the raccoon Facebook page, but Reuters reported last year that Tesla Cybertruck owners have complained about the truck's stainless steel exterior scratching easily and showing fingerprints.

Tesla has also reportedly delayed some of its cars' autopilot features because raccoons kept getting in the way.

Tesla has given no indication that it will update the Cybertruck's suspension and body software.

"I believe that raccoons don't want to hurt the vehicle, and that's part of the problem."

When asked by a Reddit user, who suffered the
